

Relationship Report

Prepared for:

Edward VIII

Born Saturday, June 23, 1894

9:55 pm (time zone = GMT +0 hours)

Richmond, England, United Kingdom 51° N 27' 42", 0° W 18' 23"

and ~

Wallis

Born Friday, June 19, 1896

10:30 pm (time zone = GMT -5 hours)

Blue Ridge Summit, Pennsylvania, United States 39° N 43' 27", 77° W 28' 17"

Using:

Placidus Houses and Equal House
Geocentric Tropical Zodiac

This report describes how you are with each other, not who you are inherently. So, you wouldn't necessarily behave like this in other relationships. The way we feel and behave with someone has much to do with how we receive their energy.

This report consists of three parts:

Part 1

How You See Your Partner:

"YOUR PLANETS IN YOUR PARTNER'S HOUSES"

Also known as "House Overlays," this part of the report reveals how you see your partner. This includes your first impression of them, but it's also a lasting perception that you continue to carry. We tend to treat people according to our own perceptions of them. Some parts in this section have considerably more influence on you than others. When you read the House Overlay interpretations, please be aware that the most noticeable influences are from your Sun, Moon, Venus, and Mars in your partner's houses. Next are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn, while Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto are subconscious influences and therefore not always noticeable.

* House Overlays are calculated with two house systems: the Placidus House system and the Equal House system. All overlays in 1 and 2 are valid for both house systems except where it is clearly noted. Please note that any overlays have a different reading for one house system, you will see it highlighted in this report.

Part 2

How Your Partner Sees You:

"YOUR PARTNER'S PLANETS IN YOUR HOUSES"

This is the same as Part 1, but reversed so that it reveals how your partner sees you.

Part 3

Compatibility:

"ASPECTS BETWEEN YOUR CHARTS"

This part reveals the actual dynamics between you, whether you are compatible, how you get along, and how you may rub each other the wrong way. No couple has a combination of "good" and "bad" aspects. No couple has a perfect combination report, and this is okay.

Some aspects in this section have considerably more influence on you than others do. As you read Part 3, you'll notice that each aspect begins with an Orb. Keep in mind that the closer the orb, the stronger the influence of that aspect. An aspect with an orb of one or two degrees and just a few minutes, will be a major influence in your relationship. On the other hand, an aspect with an orb of greater than 6 degrees may not even be noticeable by both of you.

Before reading this report, it's important to analyze your individual preferences as shown by your individual birth charts to put this report in context. (Please see our helpful article, "Before Determining Compatibility" on our website, AstroLibrary.org. It is Lesson 12 on the Lessons page.)

SAMPLE REPORT

Part 1

How You See Your Partner:

Edward VIII's Planets in Wallis's Houses

Edward VIII's Sun in Wallis's 5th House

This is the "WOW" overlay. Edward VIII sees Wallis as a source of pleasure, enjoyment, and delight. Edward VIII sees her as the person with whom he can enjoy himself. Edward VIII feels he will be joyful if only he could just be with Wallis. This overlay gives the rare, and lucky, experience of feeling real pleasure by being with another person. Edward VIII calls her "beautiful" according to Wallis. Wallis just fills Edward VIII's senses with so much pleasure, it can only be defined without logic. It's like the feeling of listening to a nice bit of music, or inhaling the scent of flowers, or the feel of grass on bare feet. Wallis simply arouses Edward VIII's sensory responses. Edward VIII enjoys Wallis's presence because Wallis pleases his senses; Edward VIII finds her "beautiful." Despite the delight you both may feel, however, this overlay is not, in itself, a solid base for a partnership or friendship. It is, of course, fun to be seen in such a way and Wallis will be pleased too, being admired or adored is always nice. But this response is a sensory one which functions independently of any other capacity to get along or harmonize personalities. Even if it contributes a lovely romanticism (or at least, a sort of tender blindness) to any relationship, it can so overwhelm the senses that other, more basic incompatibilities may be ignored or sublimated; incompatibilities that can eventually break through the fog of fantasy and cause any relationship to erode away into disappointment and bitterness. With this overlay, it is always wise to look to see if such underlying incompatibilities are being temporarily ignored.

Edward VIII's Moon in Wallis's 1st House

Edward VIII tends to assume that Wallis feels the same emotions and response as Edward VIII does when confronted with a given circumstance. The quality of affection that Edward VIII feels is based on a presumption of understanding and identification.

between you. Edward VIII has a willingness to reveal his emotions and preferences and to proceed on the premise that there will be a shared response by Wallis which allows for mutual enjoyment of the same experiences. Whatever Edward VIII cherishes and seeks out as a means of emotional satisfaction, he assumes Wallis also values. Wallis should respond well to Edward VIII's openness and emotional candor. Wallis welcomes Edward VIII's unguarded attitudes and warmth.

Edward VIII's Mercury in Wallis's 6th House

Wallis makes Edward VIII feel compelled to restrain his natural tendency to spread his mental energy over a broad spectrum. Edward VIII tries to be more practical and focused on specific tasks. Wallis may then assume that Edward VIII's approach to daily living will remain steady, practical, and focused. Depending on both of your natal chart qualities, the effect of this may range from a helpful stabilizing an otherwise rather unsteady life course, to creating a feeling of boredom and restraint which, over time, might be a corrosive problem.

Edward VIII's Venus in Wallis's 3rd House

Edward VIII feels very relaxed and comfortable with Wallis. Edward VIII feels a sense that Wallis will not ask anything in the way of manner or attitude which will force role-playing or artifice. Edward VIII senses that Wallis is approachable. You both easily slip into a companionable and communicative relationship. Your interchange is pleasant and open. Wallis tends to appreciate Edward VIII's warm and appreciative tone and will usually try to respond positively. There is an underlying trust and harmony between you that allows you to explore the possibilities within each other's personality and find whatever bonds which may exist. Even if this is not usually suggestive of romantic or sexual responses, but this ease and openness can make even small links seem worth pursuing. In an environment of strong romantic or sexual linkages, this overlay can produce a delightful quality of understanding and sensitivity to each other; an almost intuitive bond which allows each of you to anticipate and respond to the needs of the other. Any intimacy which may even exist is light-hearted and full of gentle humor, allowing you both to express your inner feelings without fear of rejection or ridicule. Your timing and priorities should work well together. And with any support from other links, this can be a durable and pleasing experience for both, regardless of what form your relationship ultimately assumes. Although this is most commonly an overlay which results in a companionable friendship or easy relationship, it can be a very happy ingredient of a more intimate interplay if other, more personal, links exist.

[NOTE: Edward VIII's Venus lands in Wallis's 3rd House when using the Placidus house system to draw your charts. But, please see the alternative "Venus in the 4th House" below, since Edward VIII's Venus is in Wallis's 4th House when using the Equal House system. Both house systems are valid.]

Edward VIII's Venus in Wallis's 4th House

Here is a kind of dynamic and exciting tension which can be a basis for a lively if not always stable response. The underlying desire with Edward VIII is to make himself open and available to Wallis and put his entire ego-identity on the line for Wallis either to accept or reject. Obviously, when one makes oneself that vulnerable to another human, it is most easily done in an environment of trust and reasonable shelter from the possible painful rejection by the other person. But your scenario is usually too conflict-filled and tense to reassure Edward VIII adequately and, no matter what other linkages may be operating, there is a self-protective quality to any initiative Edward VIII takes. Wallis will sense this guardedness and hesitancy and will probably interpret it as either a lack of confidence or as a sign that Edward VIII has doubts about Wallis's motives or integrity. This does not make your relationship easy to begin or sustain despite a particular form of magnetism between you. There is too much uncertainty and discomfort between you for a relationship to work well. There is an almost inevitable tension. This energy and excitement can be reconciled and may, under some circumstances, be rechanneled into an interesting kind of interplay. For this to occur, however, links involving other planets (particularly Moon) must provide a reassuring background for your relationship. There will remain, however, a persisting sense that any bond is based more on the exciting differences between your personalities rather than your essential harmony.

Edward VIII's Mars in Wallis's 1st House

Edward VIII perceives Wallis to be an ego-enhancing partner in that there is considerable physical attraction and a sense that, by any standards, Wallis could be seen by the world as a reflection of Edward VIII's capacity to attract a capable partner. This is just as true in non-romantic relationships as it is in romantic relationships. We enjoy the reflected recognition which comes from being with ers. I believe (and assume others would agree) is a "fine specimen." Wallis may be aware of the awareness that Edward VIII finds her so presentable and clearly enjoys her association with Edward VIII. The basic response then is rather more one of "display value" than a deeper, more profound need and may not have much staying power. Wallis may tire of being put on display or being prodded to always be at her physical best for Edward VIII's benefit and, of course, Edward VIII may ultimately want something more substantial in a partnership than physical attraction.

[NOTE: Edward VIII's Mars lands in Wallis's 1st House when using the Placidus House system to draw your charts. But, please see the alternative "Mars in the 2nd House" below, since Edward VIII's Mars is in Wallis's 2nd House when using the Equal House system. Both house systems are valid.]

Edward VIII's Mars in Wallis's 2nd House

This combination suggests a more material form of response at least and, in the most extreme situation, a desire in Edward VIII to "own" Wallis outright. To what end this ownership might be directed depends on other links, but Edward VIII will tend to see Wallis as one who can play a role in acquiring whatever Edward VIII wants to own. This may be as innocent as an agent/client relationship or the hiring of someone to replace the roof on your house. But it can, because of the subliminal sexual character of the 2nd house, stimulate a quality of possessiveness and dominance in Edward VIII. How Wallis responds to this depends not only on what she seeks in the interaction, but even more on her own natal qualities. Insufficient and confident individuals will resent Edward VIII's tendency to want to dominate the relationship. More passive and unsure individuals may well find exactly what they seek in Edward VIII's strong hand. No relationship is ever entirely balanced. Almost inevitably one of the partners accepts a more "following" role. If there is a polarity of strength and independence in one of your natal charts, this overlay leaves little doubt over who is in charge.

Edward VIII's Jupiter in Wallis's 4th House

Edward VIII is stimulated to protect and care for Wallis in pleasant ways. Edward VIII sincerely cares about Wallis's well-being. Wallis welcomes this, even looking forward to it. You feel all warm and fuzzy with each other. You trust in each other's loyalty.

[NOTE: Edward VIII's Jupiter lands in Wallis's 4th House when using the Placidus House system to draw your charts. But, please see the alternative "Jupiter in the 5th House" below, since Edward VIII's Jupiter is in Wallis's 5th House when using the Equal House system. Both house systems are valid.]

Edward VIII's Jupiter in Wallis's 5th House

Edward VIII sees Wallis as a companion. Edward VIII feels a deep quality of generous concern and interest in Wallis's happiness and fulfillment and will typically do what can be done to contribute to it. Wallis will be quite secure and open in such an overlay and come to rely on Edward VIII for reassurance and "recharging" when these needs seem to be in jeopardy. They will provide support for each other if either of you are ever depressed or anxious. Edward VIII is the energy source and Wallis is the warmed and radiated reflector.

Edward VIII's Saturn in Wallis's 7th House

This overlay produces a rather cold, calculating unconscious impulse in Edward VIII to be manipulative. Edward VIII sees Wallis as an object to obtain, to use and exploit without particular regard for any pain or damage done. Wallis, like a wary animal sensing danger, will normally retreat and maintain a safe distance. This may result in a disturbing discomfort and a quality of hunt in your interaction which keeps you both tense and distrustful. If you are sexually involved, this overlay will amplify any tendency toward falling into a self-punishing and unbalanced relationship. If either of you have a history of repeating a pattern of relationships which cause you to be exploited and abused, this overlay can trigger that kind of self-destructive behavior mode.

[NOTE: Edward VIII's Saturn lands in Wallis's 8th House when using the Placidus House system to draw your charts. But, please see the alternative "Saturn in the 9th House" below, since Edward VIII's Saturn is in Wallis's 9th House when using the Equal House system. Both house systems are valid.]

Edward VIII's Saturn in Wallis's 9th House

Edward VIII plays the role of mentor or guide to Wallis. Your relationship may even have a teacher/student quality to it. With this Saturn overlay, it is common for substantial age differences to be bridged, and for two people who appear to be Both it is common to discover a strong intellectual bond. Wallis will sense Edward VIII's interest as well as the absence any manipulative or possessive intent, and will respond with appreciation rather than unnecessary self-protection. Your relationship will gain depth and profoundness with this overlay, although in itself it does not imply emotional intimacy or warmth.

Edward VIII's Saturn in Wallis's 9th House

This overlay is subtle and its effects tend not to reveal themselves unless you're drawn together by stronger and more urgent links elsewhere in your charts. If that's the case, this overlay will cause Edward VIII to believe that many of his unconscious and unspoken feelings and attitudes can be revealed to Wallis safely and without fear of rejection or ridicule. Wallis may play the role of an uncritical listener or even perhaps a teacher or counselor for Edward VIII as concerns or anxieties are released from his unconscious. There is a quiet fundamental harmony between you with this overlay which can have a calming effect, especially on Edward VIII. This interaction is valuable for releasing tensions and stresses which you both have accumulated in your efforts to conform to social or cultural rules. You cast each other as confidants and trusted custodians for ideas and hopes which otherwise remain private and unshared.

Edward VIII's Neptune in Wallis's 4th House

Edward VIII may doubt that Wallis accepts him as an individual, or doubt that there's any common ground of priorities between you. Edward VIII may seem to be constantly seeking the approval of Wallis and, because of this, Wallis may respond in a way which seems to be pushing away the possibility of a relationship. Over time, this position for Neptune may erode away some of the self-confidence of each of you because of a lingering feeling that there is not a fundamental mutual respect or feeling of intrinsic worth between you.

Edward VIII's Pluto in Wallis's 4th House

While this is not a major element in a relationship, this position can add an unwelcome quality of bullying or overreaction to minor problems. Pluto here reinforces the reality of kinship and almost cosmic bonding, but can bring a dictatorial quality to your interaction. Under stress, Edward VIII may adopt an authoritarian attitude towards

...all... device to make the relationship proceed as he wishes. This may trigger in ...either ill-advised yielding to Edward VIII's demand or angry rebellion, depending on Wallis'... qualities.

SAMPLE REPORT

Part 2

How Your Partner Sees You:

Wallis's Planets in Edward VIII's Houses

Wallis's Sun in Edward VIII's 5th House

This is the "WOW" overlay. Wallis sees Edward VIII as a source of pleasure, enjoyment, and delight. Wallis sees him as the person with whom she can enjoy herself. Wallis feels life will be joyful if only she could just be with Edward VIII. This overlay gives the rare, and lucky, experience of feeling real pleasure by being with another person. Wallis defines reality according to Edward VIII. Edward VIII just fills Wallis's senses with so much pleasure it can only be defined without logic. It's like the feeling of listening to a nice bit of music, or inhaling the scent of flowers, or the feel of grass on bare feet. Edward VIII simply arouses Wallis's sensory responses. Wallis enjoys Edward VIII's presence because Edward VIII pleases her senses; Wallis finds him "beautiful." Despite the delight you both experience, however, this overlay is not, in itself, a solid base for a partnership in the long term. It is, of course, fun to be seen in such a way and Edward VIII will be pleased to be admired or adored; being admired is always nice. But this response is a sensory one which functions independently of any other capacity to get along or harmonize personalities. Even if it contributes a lovely romanticism (or at least, a sort of tender blindness) to any relationship, it can so overwhelm the senses that other, more basic incompatibilities may be ignored or sublimated; incompatibilities that can eventually break through the fog of fantasy and cause any relationship to erode away into disappointment and bitterness. With this overlay, it is always wise to look to see if such underlying incompatibilities are being temporarily ignored.

[NOTE: Wallis's Sun lands in Edward VIII's 5th House, but it is close enough to the 6th House cusp to influence the 6th House (Equal Houses), so you can see the alternative "Sun in the 6th House" below, since this interpretation is also valid in your situation.]

Wallis's Sun in Edward VIII's 6th House

Wallis tends to see Edward VIII as one to whom she can give service, support and cooperation for the purpose of some group endeavor. Rather than being peers, you take the role of leader and subordinate, one of you assuming a leadership role and the other surrendering some of the control over your own life as a means of achieving some joint objective. Most likely, Wallis is the one who yields in this overlay and Edward VIII tends to frame the purpose of your interaction and provide the initiative in moving toward its goal. Obviously, this overlay is more useful and appropriate if the element of "work" is a major thrust of your relationship. When some chore or burden comes along which you combine your energies to meet the demand. This overlay is not inherently contrary to a generally balanced and satisfactory relationship, given other linkages, but it would tend to retain a major element of this leader/follower quality. It is as if one of you recognizes that certain abilities and strengths are necessary to cope with the situation in which you find yourselves and, seeing this, yields to the other person who seems to possess these qualities. You tend to accept this cut in our own self-interest in a complex and demanding world, this sort of interaction is not entirely unwelcome. It always, however, carries the potential of resentment and ultimately the eroding of self-esteem which can be tolerated only by rather passive personalities whose sense of vulnerability exceeds their need for independence.

Wallis's Moon in Edward VIII's 8th House

This overlay is a vaguely troubling and disturbing one. Every human harbors some dark thoughts, some strange corners or some abhorrent fantasies in their unconscious. The conscious mind can manage these urges and prevent them from being translated from arcane phantoms into actualizing, but there is no way to prevent these unconscious emotional drives from giving birth to them...no way, of course, except severe repression which leads to true madness. For most humans this phenomenon is quite manageable and we experience only fleeting and very private break-outs of these drives. Edward VIII triggers this sort of response in Wallis, reaching into Wallis's deep emotions and stirring up these phantoms. The particular form in which these demons reveal themselves depends both on Wallis's natal potential and the remainder of the links with Edward VIII. Check Wallis's natal chart to see if any such drives root, where the potential for unacceptable social behavior may lie dormant and restrained. Edward VIII may well sense this response and, should there be

...ce you created by other linkages to Wallis's chart, be motivated to capitalize on them. These responses are familiar enough: greed, possessiveness, power, sexual excess and other of humanity's less attractive qualities. In general, this overlay tends to bring out the least positive of your potentials, and at least momentarily tempt you to escape from the restraints of society in some way.

[NOTE: Wallis's Moon lands in Edward VIII's 8th House when using the Placidus House system to draw your charts. So, please see the alternative "Moon in the 9th House" below, since Wallis's Moon is in Edward VIII's 9th House when using the Equal House system. Both house systems are valid.]

Wallis's Moon in Edward VIII's 8th House

We all have ideals for concepts such as "heroic," "genius," "admirable," and other cultural yardsticks. Wallis may find in Edward VIII qualities which conform to these measures, or at least feel that Edward VIII will share similar standards of them. At a superficial level, these judgments make Wallis a "fan" of Edward VIII. At a more profound level, they are the roots of Wallis's own highest aspirations. Wallis finds something to admire or respect in Edward VIII and he, in turn, is usually more than pleased to be seen in this light and responds accordingly. Because of this positive intellectual interplay, it is quite likely you will try to teach each other to hone your own perceptions of the world and reinforce your own feeling judgments. Because these paradigms are emotionally rooted, we often find it difficult to describe or defend in purely rational terms. We believe in our beliefs with passion, but often collapse in an emotional tangle when we are called upon to defend them. Typically we then turn to like-minded individuals with whom we can stand shoulder to shoulder, to "defend what is right!" This is the role you play for each other. You find you have similar attitudes on politics, religion, personal behavior and social behavior. This is usually a winning combination because after all, nothing is so winning as a person who thinks like you, acts like you and agrees with you. Whether or not you share an intimate connection, this is still a highly harmonious interaction landing you at the same meeting, rally, fundraiser or cultural event. These are necessary foundations for a relationship.

Wallis's Mercury in Edward VIII's 4th House

You have a clear sense of shared attitudes toward social mores and customs.

provides a basis for Wallis to assume that her established way of going about everyday life will not bother Edward VIII. Edward VIII will likely accept Wallis's attitudes and approach to social values without difficulty and include her within the daily circle of activity without any concern that the normal pattern will be disrupted by the her presence.

[NOTE: Wallis's Mercury lands in Edward VIII's 4th House when using the Placidus House system to draw your charts. So, please see the alternative "Mercury in the 5th House" below, since Wallis's Mercury is in Edward VIII's 5th House when using the Equal House system. Both house systems are valid.]

Wallis's Mercury in Edward VIII's 5th House

Your interaction is full of humor and cheerfulness, making continuing contact easy and lighthearted. Wallis will like the prospect to be her most amusing and entertaining self, offering encouragement and reinforcement to Edward VIII in the usually less-than-exciting routines of life. Edward VIII will, no doubt, find Wallis's amiable good nature and upbeat pleasantries a welcome bright spot in his world. This relationship will not be bogged down in discouragement or boredom.

Wallis's Venus in Edward VIII's 5th House

This overlay is the most romantic and titillating of the entire circle of houses since the 5th house symbolizes all things joyous, beautiful and romantic. With this overlay, Wallis truly sees Edward VIII as an embodiment of Wallis's particular paradigm of human loveliness and perfection. The intriguing part of this is that Wallis may well "see" qualities in Edward VIII which not only are not "seen" by others but which, regrettably, may not even exist in fact. There is a mesmerizing quality to this overlay which, while it may not actually blind Wallis to Edward VIII's faults and flaws, causes Wallis to be so forgiving and capable of sublimating her judgment that she has a self-serving illusion about Edward VIII. Very few people object to being seen in such a dazzled and misty-eyed way and, rather predictably, Edward VIII is thrilled with the response. What Edward VIII chooses to do about this adoration depends largely on other images, in particular the reverse overlay, but also his self-image. It is wise to gauge the strength of Edward VIII's sense of self-worth and capacity to deal with the adoration. People with a strong natal personality and a firm base of self-confidence will enjoy this response to themselves, but probably only return to Wallis an honest and for a forward feedback about how he wishes to evolve the relationship. A person with low self-esteem or one who is rather self-oriented and lacking in compassion may well seize on this reaction in Wallis to exploit or manipulate her. At its best, this overlay is immensely satisfying and fulfills what all humans hope to experience: that wonderful glow which is kindled by being with, and close to, another human who embodies all the lovely and wonderful things in a partner (a reaction which, incidentally, rarely fades with time). At its worst, however, it can trap you in a web of illusion and fantasy which leads you both down a path of romantic disillusion and falseness. This is a powerful overlay and you should hope for other more "real" links to keep the relationship within the realm of the possible.

Wallis's Mars in Edward VIII's 2nd House

This combination suggests a rather material form of response at least and, in the most extreme situation, a desire in Edward VIII outright. To what end this ownership might be directed depends on other links, but Wallis will tend to see Edward VIII as one who can play a role in acquiring whatever Wallis wants to own. This may be as innocent as an agent/client relationship or the hiring of someone to replace the roof on your house. But it can, because of the subliminal sexual character of the 2nd house, stimulate a quality of possessiveness and dominance in Wallis. How Edward VIII responds to this depends not only on what he seeks in the interaction, but even more on his own natal qualities. Self-sufficient and confident individuals will resent Wallis's tendency to attempt to dominate the relationship. More passive and unsure individuals may well find exactly what they seek in Wallis's strong hand. No relationship is ever entirely balanced and almost inevitably one of the partners accepts a more "following" role. If there is a clear polarity of strength and independence in one of your natal charts, this overlay leaves little doubt over who is in charge.

[NOTE: Wallis's Mars lands in Edward VIII's 2nd House when using the Placidus House system to draw your charts. So, please see the alternative "Mars in the 3rd House" below, since Wallis's Mars is in Edward VIII's 3rd House when using the Equal House system. Both house systems are valid.]

Wallis's Mars in Edward VIII's 3rd House

This overlay has great potential for fun and activity and shared dabbling in a range of

ing. Wallis sees Edward VIII as one with whom pairing up for "doing and going" is quite natural. Nearly everything available to humans is more fun to do with another than alone and Wallis usually will identify Edward VIII as the sort who probably will enjoy the same excursions and explorations. Edward VIII will typically find communication with Wallis delightfully easy and effortless and there may even be a pattern of reaching out by phone calling, texting or emailing for the sheer fun of chatting with each other and sharing experiences. This overlay can obviously add a great deal to any interaction and a friendship does not require a major emotional or romantic commitment to sustain your relationship. You can seek whatever level of involvement you each want from the relationship without the unfortunate background noise of wanting more than can be achieved. Your relationship has the tone of light-heartedness and good humor. Even if you don't progress into a serious relationship, you will at least enjoy each other at the most superficial (but entertaining) level.

Wallis's Jupiter in Edward VIII's 1st House

Wallis feels warmth and selflessness towards Edward VIII. It seems quite natural for Wallis to send flowers, remember birthdays and find many opportunities to do little things which compliment and reassure Edward VIII. Edward VIII responds to Wallis's kindness and concern with love and acceptance. Perhaps the only difficulty that arises here is if circumstances prevent you from developing all this good feeling between you into a full relationship. In such a situation, Wallis is particularly vulnerable to feeling that she has made a major unselfish effort in a relationship and has not gotten a fair return. This overlay is sometimes the source of a very useful lesson: you can't make someone feel about you as you would want and that's how hard you try and how kind and considerate your behavior.

Wallis's Saturn in Edward VIII's 9th House

Wallis plays the role of mentor or guide to Edward VIII. Your relationship may even have a teacher/student quality to it. With this Saturn overlay, it is common for substantial age differences to be bridged, and for two people who appear to have nothing in common to discover a strong intellectual bond. Edward VIII will sense Wallis's interest as well as the absence any manipulative or possessive intent and will respond with appreciation rather than unnecessary self-protection. Your relationship will gain depth and profoundness with this overlay, although in itself it does not imply emotional intimacy or warmth.

[NOTE: Wallis's Saturn lands in Edward VIII's 9th House when using the Placidus House system to draw your charts. So, please see the alternative "Saturn in 10th House" below, since Wallis's Saturn is in Edward VIII's 10th House when using the Equal House system. Both house systems are valid.]

Wallis's Saturn in Edward VIII's 10th House

According to Wallis's self-image and aspirations, she sees Edward VIII as "acceptable." Despite the fascination of the foreign and exotic, most humans ultimately are most comfortable and form relationships with other humans who appear to fall within the acceptable parameters of their particular subculture. Edward VIII is perceived as being somewhat of the "right sort" and Wallis has a natural inclination to associate herself with Edward VIII. Edward VIII, most likely, will enjoy being found acceptable, and respond positively to Wallis's appraisal if Wallis appears to offer any other desirable qualities. Wallis may make fun of the need for "acceptance" in humans, but it is nonetheless a strong element in the sustaining of a strong self-image and only true eccentrics and rebels (some might say "social misfits") are unaffected by this need. There is nothing particularly warm in this response, but when it is absent, there is a lingering doubt about the "appropriateness" of the relationship which can be a source of long-term difficulties. So, at the very least, your relationship seems appropriate.

Wallis's Uranus in Edward VIII's 9th House

This overlay is very subtle and its effects tend not to reveal themselves unless you're drawn together by stronger and more urgent links elsewhere in your charts. If that's the case, this overlay will cause Wallis to believe that many of her unconscious and unspoken feelings and attitudes can be revealed to Edward VIII safely and without fear of rejection or ridicule. Edward VIII may play the role of a noncritical listener or even perhaps a teacher or counselor for Wallis as concerns or anxieties are released from her unconscious. There is a quiet but fundamental harmony between you with this overlay which can have a liberating effect, especially on Wallis. This interaction is valuable for releasing tensions and stresses which you both have accumulated in your efforts to conform to social or cultural rules. You cast each other as advisors and trusted custodians for ideas and hopes which otherwise remain private and unshared.

[NOTE: Wallis's Uranus lands in Edward VIII's 9th House when using the Placidus House system to draw your charts. So, please see the alternative "Uranus in 10th House" below, since Wallis's Uranus is in Edward VIII's 10th House when using the Equal House system. Both house systems are valid.]

[NOTE: Wallis's Uranus lands in Edward VIII's 10th House when using the Placidus House system to draw your charts. So, please see the alternative "Uranus in the 10th House" below, since Wallis's Uranus is in Edward VIII's 10th House when using the Equal House system. Both house systems are valid.]

Wallis's Uranus in Edward VIII's 10th House

Wallis gets the feeling that Edward VIII's goals and priorities are too different from hers to make a relationship possible. Even if you are attracted to each other in other areas, this difference in priorities will be difficult to reconcile. This relationship will not likely take off because of this underlying disagreement on what counts in life. If you do have other harmonic qualities between you, this link will not prevent you from coming together and even forming a rewarding interaction, but the harmonies will also not entirely override this residual element of differing worldviews. If you do continue in a relationship, Wallis will probably be unable to restrain an urge from time to time to be critical of the choices Edward VIII makes with regard to anything which reflects their public image. Whether this is only a minor squeak in an otherwise smoothly functioning relationship or becomes a serious area of disagreement depends largely on the strength of the feelings Edward VIII has for Wallis and how much of this periodic criticism he is willing to accept to keep this relationship.

Wallis's Neptune in Edward VIII's 4th House

Wallis may doubt that Edward VIII accepts her for who she is, or doubt that there's any common ground of priorities between you. Wallis may seem to be constantly seeking the approval of Edward VIII and, because of this, Edward VIII may respond in a way which seems to be pushing away the possibility of a relationship. Over time, this position for Neptune may erode away some of the self-confidence of each of you because of a lingering feeling that there is not a fundamental mutual respect or feeling of intrinsic worth between you.

[NOTE: Wallis's Neptune lands in Edward VIII's 4th House when using the Placidus House system to draw your charts. So, please see the alternative "Neptune in the 5th House" below, since Wallis's Neptune is in Edward VIII's 5th House when using the Equal House system. Both house systems are valid.]

Wallis's Neptune in Edward VIII's 5th House

Neptune here adds a subtle and unconscious romanticism to your interaction.

Wallis in Wallis a sense of the beauty and inherent "perfection" of Edward VIII: the classic "rose-colored lenses" effect. Edward VIII will feel a bond with Wallis of an almost ethereal or other-worldly quality, as if you share some special tie in the world of myth and dreams. This is a harmless and mild reaction, but in situations where powerful romantic sexual magnetics are operating on the inner planets, the circumstances would advise caution. Your capacity for objective judgment of each other is blurred by this overlay and can contribute to a lack of realism and sensibleness in your interaction.

Wallis's Pluto in Edward VIII's 4th House

While this is not a major element in a relationship, this position can add an unwelcome quality of bullying or overbearing to minor problems. Pluto here reinforces the quality of kinship and almost cosmic bonding, but can bring a dictatorial quality to your interaction. Under stress, Wallis may adopt an authoritarian attitude toward Edward VIII as a device to make the relationship proceed as she wishes. This may trigger in Edward VIII either ill-advised yielding to Wallis's demand or angry rebellion, depending on Edward VIII's natal qualities.

[NOTE: Wallis's Pluto lands in Edward VIII's 4th House when using the Placidus House system to draw your charts. So you see the alternative "Pluto in the 5th House" below, since Wallis's Pluto is in Edward VIII's 5th House when using the Equal House system. Both house systems are valid.]

Wallis's Pluto in Edward VIII's 5th House

Pluto here can contribute an undertone of romantic sexual passion and aggravate any urge to abandon your present situation in favor of an more exciting escapade. With this overlay of Pluto, any sexual links between you are given a darker, more intense tone, stirring some very primal urges. Certainly Wallis, motivated by other links to inner planets, will sense an unconscious drive to "possess" or somehow dominate Edward VIII, a response which Edward VIII will sense and respond to based on his own natal chart potentials. Pluto in this overlay makes itself felt more clearly than in most; and no matter what form your interaction takes, it will have intensity and depth...for better or worse.

Part 3

Compatibility:

Aspects From Edward VIII To Wallis

Edward VIII's Sun Conjunction Wallis's Sun

Orb: 3° 6'

This connection is felt very deeply, and it's one of the things that drew you together in the first place. However, if you become fixated on the experience of this connection, you may struggle to adapt and grow with the relationship as it evolves. This connection alone is not enough to sustain a romantic relationship in the long term because this adds general compatibility, not necessarily romance.

You have a lot in common and mutual understanding comes naturally to you. However, the question may arise, which of the two of you plays the leading role in your relationship, resulting in some rivalry and competitiveness between the two of you. Still, you can both choose to use these impulses to achieve your full potential.

You find it easy to get along when you share activities and deal with the outside world together. Your fundamental value systems are compatible. You have a natural friendliness and a similar outlook on life. If you have many shared interests, this combination adds a positive impact. Yours is a dynamic relationship, with plenty of give and take on both sides. You will undoubtedly have a noticeable effect on each other, and it depends on your maturity whether the relationship becomes constructive or destructive.

Edward VIII's Moon Trine Wallis's Sun

Orb: 4° 37'

This is an ideal connection, and provides the right balance of opposites mixed with similarities for an intimate relationship to have a good chance of success. The essence of your personalities blend well. Your personal characteristics complement each other so that you find harmony, sympathetic exchange, spiritual affinity.

but a deep understanding in this union.

You get a positive energy from each other that excites you, while it offers great stability and peace. This is an excellent combination for any type of relationship and in particular for a romantic or marital one. There is a deep emotional understanding between you. Edward VIII is intuitive and sensitive toward Wallis. Wallis protects and defends Edward VIII.

Wallis understands Edward VIII's feelings well and finds it easy to encourage him and not put emotional obstacles in his way. Wallis has a strong emotional effect on Edward VIII.

Edward VIII is receptive to Wallis's vibes, creative expression and initiative. Edward VIII is always ready to give support. Edward VIII is encouraging, but can also have a calming and soothing effect when Wallis needs it. Edward VIII relies on Wallis for advice and trusts Wallis's wisdom.

Even a business partnership would work well because you're able to cooperate without competitiveness. Edward VIII helps Wallis solve her problems and find ways to meet her needs. Wallis feels she can count on Edward VIII for everything.

Subconsciously, your parents, or your ideal vision of an excellent partnership, has a positive influence on this union, perhaps giving it a sense of direction and meaning.

Edward VIII's Mercury Square Wallis's Moon

Orb: 6° 20'

It is likely that on more than one occasion, violent feelings will arise between you, and you will come to exchange harsh words. Wallis gets the impression that Edward VIII is insensitive and overly critical, and that Edward VIII doesn't understand what is going on inside her at all. Wallis will often feel hurt by Edward VIII's cold and calculating attitude. Edward VIII accuses Wallis of withdrawing into herself, that Wallis doesn't know, or doesn't want to say, what she really feels. In addition, Edward VIII may expect support from Wallis that Wallis is apparently unwilling to give him. Edward VIII doesn't understand the way Wallis reacts, and why Wallis goes the way she does.

Edward VIII's Mercury Square Wallis's Mars

Orb: 5° 54'

all thanks of Edward VIII as a person who talks a lot but doesn't act, which ensures that arguments and unintended insults will occur often between you. Also, Edward VIII's habit of analyzing the way Wallis pursues her goals can be quite upsetting to Wallis, as Edward VIII hardly ever approves of the way she does things. On the other hand, Wallis's tendency to be impulsive and press Edward VIII with her impatience irritates Edward VIII so much that it provokes in Edward VIII a critical reaction and an attitude which sometimes makes him say more than he should. A good measure of patience from Edward VIII will be necessary to avoid frequent conflict situations.

Edward VIII's Venus Conjunction Wallis's Moon

Orb: 2° 1'

Wallis gets the feeling that Edward VIII doesn't appreciate her emotions and doesn't understand how she feels. While Edward VIII thinks that Wallis doesn't take Edward VIII's ideals seriously or that Wallis doesn't support his scale of values.

Misunderstandings and emotional confusion can destabilize your relationship, since you find it difficult to be affectionate with each other, and it is possible that the attraction is one-sided. Your feelings fluctuate and may lack seriousness or depth. You often run the risk of a kind of cold war between the two of you. And if you are thinking of going into business together, consult with professionals or people who have experience, as your expectations of each other tend to be unrealistic.

Edward VIII's Venus Opposition Wallis's Venus

Orb: 2° 14'

Edward VIII appreciates that Wallis brings an air of excitement and adventure into Edward VIII's life, and he gladly supports Wallis with his own energy and a companionable attitude. You may be part of a group of people with esoteric, humanitarian or scientific goals, and it all seems very fascinating and attractive, but other aspects more indicative of a lasting relationship will be required to counteract the ephemeral nature of this aspect, especially if you plan to live together, or form a long-term professional partnership for serious purposes. This conjunction also indicates a certain conceit on the part of both of you, often sudden and changing, but other comparative aspects can give stability to the relationship. Otherwise, there is a danger that separation may come as unexpectedly as your first meeting.

Edward VIII's Venus Quincunx Wallis's Chiron

The attraction between you is powerful and passionate. This has the potential to be a very strong and long-lasting relationship. However, this combination indicates some possible issues to look out for. You may be attracted to each other's faults more than the strengths. This means you may love the other because they are broken. This might make the other person afraid to heal, because they would lose you if they heal. It's possible that one of you, would rather stay broken than risk loss and independence. This could awaken self-esteem issues for both of you. Edward VIII may feel criticized for the way he expresses love. Wallis may love Edward VIII intensely, but Edward VIII may not feel it, because Wallis is not speaking Edward VIII's love language. Wallis may feel that Edward VIII is divine, but when Wallis starts to feel healed by the relationship, fear may set in. Wallis may hold herself back rather than cross the line into self-healing and the responsibility that carries. You're drawn together by a magnetic attraction that makes you feel you've found the right person to fulfill whatever is missing in you. But a lack of sensitivity can undermine your relationship. Edward VIII may end up feeling unloved by Wallis, and Wallis may blame Edward VIII for her troubles. The beauty is that you want to hold on to each other at any cost. This encourages you to heal and fix any faults, knowing that the other person promises to be there after healing takes place.

Edward VIII's Venus Square Wallis's Ascendant Orb: 5° 3'

This aspect makes it difficult for you to be romantic with each other. Wallis's personal style and social behavior clash with Edward VIII's sensibility, values and style. As a consequence, Edward VIII may find Wallis's mannerisms and habits unattractive or offensive. Differences and incompatibilities between your tastes and ethics can also cause friction. Beware of impulsive actions or reactions, as these can be another source of conflict.

Edward VIII's Mars Square Wallis's Sun Orb: 1° 8'

You both tend to be intensely emotionally involved, but because your dreams and ways of being are so different, you easily clash and conflict. Wallis may feel that Edward VIII doesn't give her enough support and that Edward VIII puts too much respects her by ignoring her desires. Edward VIII doesn't feel like investing so much energy in satisfying Wallis's needs and demands. Wallis tends to ignore Edward VIII's feelings and desires and to impose Wallis's will at all costs, which often provokes Edward VIII's resistance and disagreement. On the other hand, Wallis feels overwhelmed by Edward VIII's wishes and, as a result, arguments arise between you.

Try to cultivate a sense of mutual understanding, tolerance and patience to remain calm, even if it is difficult. Otherwise, in extreme situations, you could get violent. On the other hand, if one of you gives in and lets yourself be dominated, your feelings of frustration and rebellion will affect your psychological balance and your health. This tense combination between the Sun and Mars is one of the most difficult between two people, and it would take a great deal of effort on the part of both of you to overcome differences peacefully and reach that constructive cooperation.

Edward VIII's Mars Square Wallis's Venus

Orb: 6° 28'

There is an intense sexual attraction between you, but this aspect adds a certain emotional incompatibility that can make it difficult for you to get along. Edward VIII gets the impression that Wallis is overly sentimental, touchy and indulgent, while Edward VIII seems impulsive, insolent, sometimes even ill-mannered, and insensitive. As a result, hurt feelings, jealousy and power struggles can cause friction or more serious conflicts. Over time, this aspect can lead to a mutual lack of consideration. On a physical level, you're intensely excited by each other. Physical intimacy between you is exhilarating but also full of annoying complications. A very tense aspect, especially in intimate relationships, and one that requires a strong dose of goodwill and patience to counteract its negative effects.

Edward VIII's Jupiter Trine Wallis's Moon

Orb: 2° 54'

This combination, one of the best that can exist between two people, indicates kindness, generosity and mutual support. You have very similar cultural and spiritual values, which greatly increases the likelihood of harmony and stability in your relationship and in your home. There is an almost psychic or intuitive bond between you. While Wallis is receptive and understanding towards Edward VIII, Edward VIII shows kindness and selflessness towards Wallis, which makes your living together harmless and pleasant. Although this combination does not necessarily increase romantic attraction, it increases the durability and stability of your relationship and is also favorable for business, teaching, and travel.

Edward VIII's Jupiter Conjunction Wallis's Mercury

Orb: 2° 16'

This aspect, which is most favorable, helps communication and facilitates mutual consideration. It also indicates common interests in spiritual, cultural and intellectual matters, and forms a good basis for any kind of relationship. Edward VIII can help Wallis develop a more objective mindset and even gain social acceptance for her ideas. Edward VIII would be an excellent promoter and organizer in the case of a professional relationship. Edward VIII appreciates Wallis's ability to formulate Edward VIII's philosophical convictions and social ideas in a more rational and scientific way. Generally, there is an atmosphere of goodwill, constructive communication and honesty between you.

Edward VIII's Jupiter Conjunction Wallis's Venus

Orb: 5° 33'

The sympathy, generosity and benevolence shown for each other will be a great blessing in counteracting other less favorable conjunctive aspects and ensuring lasting compatibility. Edward VIII likes Wallis's style, her values, and her ability to incorporate a more refined and aesthetic aspect into Edward VIII's social and cultural life. Wallis enjoys Edward VIII's presence because it encourages her and fills her with optimism. Wallis especially appreciates Edward VIII's knowledge of philosophy and culture, and likes Edward VIII's efforts to create a cheerful, useful and harmonious atmosphere. The only negative side to this aspect is a possible tendency toward extravagance and indulgence, or too much emphasis on outward appearances and material possessions.

Edward VIII's Jupiter Sextile Wallis's Mars

Orb: 3° 21'

This is an excellent aspect for cooperation in matters related to media, education, or religion. You can work very effectively to alleviate the misery of less fortunate people and implement economic or political reforms. Thanks to Wallis's initiative, Edward VIII can help Wallis implement his ideals and visions in practical ways, while Edward VIII knows how to channel Wallis's energy toward concrete goals. Wallis appreciates Edward VIII's balanced judgment and wise counsel, which can help Wallis to focus her efforts more precisely and avoid unwise actions. There is a spontaneous sense of harmony and smoothness in your relationship, and you enjoy outdoor activities involving physical exercise and exploration.

Edward VIII's Jupiter Conjunction Wallis's Uranus

Orb: 2° 42'

Your relationship promises to be exciting, but hardly lasting, because each of you is likely to discover over time that you are more attached to your own ideas than to your partner. To Wallis, Edward VIII seems to be somewhat hypocritical and sanctimonious, defending old-fashioned positions, while to Edward VIII, Wallis seems to be eccentric, unreliable and too revolutionary. On the other hand, there is a risk that Wallis will encourage Edward VIII to unusual adventures and experiences which could be costly and dangerous. There may also be disagreements and friction over religious, ethical, political or financial issues.

Edward VIII's Jupiter Conjunction Wallis's Neptune

Orb: 0° 8'

You share a keen interest in spiritual or mystical matters. Edward VIII can open new horizons and a higher vision for Wallis with regard to occult research and practices or meditation, while Wallis stimulates Edward VIII's intuitive qualities and encourages Edward VIII in his intellectual or humanitarian endeavors. A collaboration in esoteric and philosophical activities or organizations can be a source of inner growth and satisfaction for both of you.

Edward VIII's Jupiter Conjunction Wallis's Pluto

Orb: 5° 42'

You share a keen interest in occult and spiritual matters, especially in questions of reincarnation and life after death. Edward VIII can open Wallis to new horizons and a higher vision with regard to mystical research and practice, philosophy, meditation, while Wallis stimulates Edward VIII's intuitive qualities and encourages him to penetrate the occult dimension of reality. A collaboration in esoteric and philosophical activities for organizations can be a source of inner growth and satisfaction for both of you.

Edward VIII's Jupiter Trine Wallis's Chiron

Orb: 2°

You're initially drawn to each other with abundant love and generosity. Wallis takes this relationship seriously and expects it to have depth and meaning. If Edward VIII also wants the relationship to be serious, that is, if this aspect is reciprocated between you, then this increases your chances of finding love and success together.

On the other hand, if Edward VIII doesn't want a serious relationship at the moment, Edward VIII can feel oppressed by Wallis's demands for purpose in the relationship. Edward VIII may end up feeling boxed in, and may need to let go. Without realizing it, Edward VIII may come to resent Wallis's power over him. Moreover, Wallis can end up feeling like the victim when the flame of love goes out. Wallis is left to wonder how something that was so good could end in so much pain, so abruptly.

Edward VIII's Jupiter Trine Wallis's Ascendant

Orb: 0° 7'

This combination indicates compatibility and good mutual understanding. You enjoy being together because Wallis brings strength to your relationship and actively supports Edward VIII in his efforts to achieve his religious, ethical and cultural goals, while Edward VIII inspires Wallis to have a more positive self-image and develop more self-confidence.

Edward VIII's Saturn Conjunction Wallis's Moon

Orb: 2° 50'

This aspect can give your relationship extraordinary durability if other planetary aspects are favorable. In that case, Edward VIII brings a sense of discipline, order and stability into Wallis's life, and even if his emotions are not very expressive, they will be deep and constant. Wallis can always be assured of Edward VIII's firmness and loyalty. Wallis teaches Edward VIII to trust Edward VIII's emotional side and to open up to his feelings. And if you have the same goals, a strong sense of mutual responsibility can emerge, and you can work together very effectively. Otherwise, Edward VIII's pessimism may tend to depress Wallis, and Edward VIII's seemingly cold and insensitive attitude may upset her emotional state. Edward VIII may reproach her for being irresponsible, temperamental and unstable, and Wallis may feel that Edward VIII's criticism prevents you from developing the personal and intimate side of your relationship.

Edward VIII's Saturn Trine Wallis's Mercury

Orb: 2° 20'

Wallis appreciates that Edward VIII's experience and discipline can be of great help to her in improving her intellectual ability and productivity. In fact, you could make an excellent team in connection with any activity that requires concentration and organization, for example, the fields of science, mathematics, engineering, accounting, publishing, law, medicine, or politics. Often, Wallis's brilliant ideas and Edward VIII's analytical skills help you to work more effectively and successfully. On a personal level, Wallis finds it easy to talk about problems that may be of concern to Edward VIII and to suggest helpful solutions. She is able to verbally analyze Edward VIII's situation, and this can be of immense help to him.

Edward VIII's Saturn Trine Wallis's Venus

Orb: 5° 28'

Wallis can always count on Edward VIII's unconditional friendship and loyalty. Edward VIII will always be there for Wallis when she needs him and will do everything possible to ensure Wallis's well-being and security both emotionally and financially. This strong sense of loyalty and responsibility, which stands out in both of you, gives your relationship exceptional stability and durability. It also allows any professional or educational cooperation where discipline and good organization are important. With Wallis's social tact and diplomatic personality, she can benefit Edward VIII's efforts to achieve professional goals, while Edward VIII can teach Wallis to be more effective in expressing her creative talents. On a personal level, Wallis has a good grasp of Edward VIII's fears and problems, and Edward VIII will certainly be grateful for Wallis's understanding and appreciation.

Edward VIII's Saturn Opposition Wallis's Mars

Orb: 3° 17'

This aspect indicates that you find it difficult to agree on when and how to act in personal, financial, or professional matters. Wallis's desire to take initiative and act quickly tends to clash with Edward VIII's fearful and cautious attitude, which can provoke rebellion and defiance in Wallis, while Edward VIII suffers from what he sees as a domineering insensitive and risky attitude on Wallis's part. Wallis's daring spirit can be a good balance to Edward VIII's tendency to hesitate, and other times Edward VIII's caution can be a good balance to Wallis's tendency to rush into things. But in general, the differences of your positions tend to cause conflict. In a professional relationship, Wallis will feel that Edward VIII demands too much and tends to overburden her with responsibilities, and that Edward VIII is also very slow and takes too long to finish a task. This aspect which requires a lot of patience and mutual consideration to avoid constant frustrations and resentments which can seriously undermine your relationship.

Edward VIII's Saturn Trine Wallis's Neptune Orb: 0° 13'

You share a deep interest in psychological, mystical and esoteric subjects. Wallis can open the door to the hidden dimension of reality and perhaps awaken Edward VIII's spiritual awareness, while Edward VIII can have a stabilizing effect on Wallis's emotional state, helping Wallis to structure her intuitive and psychic abilities through therapy or meditation exercises, and solve hidden problems in her subconscious. This is an excellent combination to work together in fields such as psychology, education, art or religion. The patience and intuitive understanding that exists between you increases your prospects for a satisfying and lasting relationship.

Edward VIII's Saturn Trine Wallis's Pluto Orb: 5° 46'

This aspect promotes successful collaboration in research work, psychology and occult practices. You probably share an interest in the laws of physics and metaphysics, scientific subjects, and anything to do with the occult. Edward VIII's organizational skills, experience, and prudence can help Wallis focus her efforts more precisely to improve herself and her environment, and Wallis can help Edward VIII gain a deeper insight into the hidden energies that lie beneath the surface of the visible world. Although this aspect does not necessarily increase romantic attraction, it does indicate a mutual acceptance of responsibility and discipline, which increases the chances of your relationship being long-lasting and successful.

Edward VIII's Saturn Conjunction Wallis's Chiron

Orb: 2° 00'

This is one of the more rewarding combinations, but it can be painful at times. This relationship focuses on what's best for both of you, and on your legacy: what wisdom you would pass on to your heirs. Since our greatest wisdom comes from our greatest pain, you will suffer together through some hardships. But Edward VIII knows how to turn your setbacks into successes, and Wallis knows how to translate your accomplishments into meaning.

This aspect requires a level of maturity from both of you. If you're less mature, Edward VIII would stop Wallis from discovering her life's meaning, rendering her life purposeless. Life would lose the magic and mystery that Wallis craves. And Wallis would make Edward VIII think that she isn't as competent as he once thought, and Edward VIII would become hopeless.

On the other hand, if you're mature and in tune with life's possibilities, you'll learn and grow together through, what promises to be, a significant and long-lasting relationship. Edward VIII provides the structured life in which Wallis can flourish, and Wallis provides the empathy and optimism which allows Edward VIII to hope and feel secure.

Edward VIII's Saturn Trine Wallis's Ascendant

Orb: 0° 12'

You are willing to accept the responsibilities inherent in your relationship, which increases the likelihood that it will be stable and long-lasting. Wallis supports Edward VIII's ambitions and can help Edward VIII overcome possible discouragements and have more enthusiasm and self-confidence, while Edward VIII can teach Wallis to develop more maturity and seriousness by focusing Wallis's efforts with more precision and organization.

Edward VIII's Uranus Square Wallis's Jupiter

Orb: 2° 38'

Your relationship promises to be exciting, but hardly lasting, because each of you is likely to discover over time that you are more attached to your own ideas than to the relationship.

part of Edward VIII, Wallis seems to be somewhat hypocritical and self-righteous, defending old-fashioned positions, while to Wallis, Edward VIII seems to be generally unreliable and too revolutionary. On the other hand, there is a risk that Edward VIII will encourage Wallis into unusual adventures and experiences which could be costly and dangerous. There may also be disagreements and friction over religious, ethical, political or financial issues.

Edward VIII's Uranus Conjunction Wallis's Saturn Orb: 1° 24'

If the overall combination is favorable, Edward VIII appreciates that Wallis's seriousness and practicality can help him to plan and organize his ideas better and be less hasty in his personal decisions. On the other hand, Wallis appreciates that Edward VIII encourages her to overcome her fears and conservative side by bringing in new experiences and intuitive insights which could help her achieve her goals and objectives more quickly and effectively. However, if the combination is afflicted by other tense aspects, Edward VIII is likely to get the impression that Wallis is old-fashioned, selfish and too attached to material values, while Wallis would consider Edward VIII unstable, unreliable and too revolutionary.

Edward VIII's Uranus Quincunx Wallis's Saturn Orb: 1° 6'

This indicates a clash between two strong and independent wills, opinions and attitudes. You both know how to achieve your goals, but you see life from different angles. Edward VIII is inclined towards drastic and sudden changes, while Wallis prefers deep transformations, even if they are slow. This is an extremely difficult aspect which often leads to fierce power struggles and even violent conflicts, especially if one of you tries to dominate or change the other.

Edward VIII's Uranus Sextile Wallis's Vertex Orb: 0° 13'

This is a special relationship. You feel connected. You are brought together to fulfill a special purpose.

Edward VIII's Neptune Trine Wallis's Moon

This relationship has the potential to be imbued with idealism and delicate feelings. Properly connected, your inspiration and imagination can lead you to develop a higher consciousness together and accomplish exceptional things. Wallis appreciates Edward VIII's sensitive and meditative side, and Wallis's support can be of great help to his spiritual elevation, while Edward VIII can help Wallis gain a better understanding of her own subtle feelings and motivations. Your common interest in art or psychology could facilitate a mutually beneficial professional collaboration.

Edward VIII's Neptune Conjunction Wallis's Mercury

Orb: 2° 5'

Wallis may be intrigued by Edward VIII's ability to guide her in discovering her intuitive faculties and finding solutions to some of the problems Wallis found difficult to solve. Edward VIII appreciates Wallis's own approach to Edward VIII's subconscious processes. There can be an almost telepathic link between you. However, you must be careful not to fall into the trap of disappointing each other even when you don't realize it.

Edward VIII's Neptune Sextile Wallis's Jupiter

Orb: 5° 5'

This indicates that your relationship is a fertile ground for inner growth and learning, where a smooth sense of spirituality can occur. Wallis seeks the truth, while her understandings are verified by Edward VIII's intuition. Wallis may open up new horizons and a higher vision for Edward VIII with regard to occult research and practices, or meditation, while Edward VIII stimulates Wallis's intuitive qualities and encourages her in her intellectual or humanitarian endeavors. Some collaboration in esoteric and philosophical activities or organizations can be a source of inner expansion and satisfaction for both of you.

Edward VIII's Neptune Quincunx Wallis's Saturn

Orb: 1° 2'

There is little mutual understanding between you because Edward VIII leans toward aesthetic, psychic, or even mystical experiences, while Wallis focuses on the practical, one the affairs of the professional and business world. Wallis is irritated and frustrated by Edward VIII's tendency to evade any kind of commitment and escape into a fantasy world of imagination. It's even worse when Edward VIII breaks his promise after Wallis has gotten him to commit to something. On the other hand, Edward VIII is turned off by Wallis's insistence on discipline and practical achievement. This makes Wallis rigid, insensitive, and unsympathetic. This aspect doesn't contribute to the stability and durability of a relationship.

Edward VIII's Neptune Conjunction Wallis's Neptune

Orb: 4° 12'

Because you were born during the same time period, there is a strong psychic bond between you and you share similar cultural and aesthetic values. However, unless this conjunction is strongly aspected by other planets, it will not have a significant impact on your relationship.

Edward VIII's Neptune Conjunction Wallis's Pluto

Orb: 1° 21'

You may notice an almost telepathic bond between you and enjoy exploring the occult and mystical side of life together. Edward VIII can show Wallis how to develop greater spiritual sensitivity and penetrate the mysterious dimensions of existence, while Wallis can help Edward VIII to increase his willpower, regenerate and improve himself and his environment.

Edward VIII's Neptune Square Wallis's Vertex

Orb: 2° 40'

This is an important relationship. It is likely to be memorable but there are issues that you must resolve.

Edward VIII's Neptune Trine Wallis's Ascendant

Orb: 4° 13'

There is an intuitive bond between you. Wallis can help Edward VIII become more active in expressing his creative imagination and applying his intuitive abilities, while Edward VIII can make Wallis more aware of the aesthetic and psychic values that exist in the world.

is a favorable combination for living together, because it brings patience and mutual understanding. You can also help each other to understand and overcome possible psychological issues that are hidden in the subconscious.

Edward VIII's Pluto Conjunction Wallis's Mercury

Orb: 5° 16'

There is a psychological bond between you, and you possibly share a keen interest in occult and esoteric subjects. Edward VIII can have an intensely transformative effect on Wallis's concepts and ideas, encouraging Wallis to work on her own intellectual or spiritual improvement and gain a deeper and broader view of life. On Edward VIII's side, Edward VIII notices Wallis's willingness to deal with any subject that affects him, even the most sensitive. Wallis understands the changes Edward VIII is experiencing and has a special ability to put them into words, which can help Edward VIII to integrate them consciously as part of his being. You are both able to concentrate on the essentials, a quality which is useful in establishing a good personal and business relationship.

Edward VIII's Pluto Sextile Wallis's Jupiter

Orb: 1° 53'

You are good friends and fellow travelers, both on the external and occult planes. A collaboration in the investigation of esoteric subjects such as reincarnation, or the practice of religious mysticism, can contribute to the mutual development and growth of both of you. Edward VIII adds depth to Wallis's budding spirit and can help Wallis, with Edward VIII's penetrating insight, to expand Wallis's consciousness and see reality from new perspectives. On the other hand, Edward VIII benefits from Wallis's free and optimistic spirit which stimulates Edward VIII's intellect and provides him with the necessary tools for inner growth. You share a sense of adventure in exploring philosophical and spiritual ideas and experiences, and you love to visit faraway places and cultures, always in search of personal regeneration, which makes your relationship prolific and fruitful in every way.

Edward VIII's Pluto Quincunx Wallis's Saturn

Orb: 2° 9'

Lack of trust and numerous conflicts over household, administrative, financial

Some matters can lead to bitter struggles for power and control. If you are involved in occult practices, there is a risk that one of you will use your powers to harm the other. Edward VIII feels that Wallis clings too tightly to the past, impeding both Edward VIII's and Wallis's progress, as Wallis resists, for selfish and materialistic reasons, Edward VIII's efforts to penetrate into Wallis's inner self and effect change, or to improve outer conditions. On the other hand, Wallis regards Edward VIII's ideas and actions as a subversive and anarchic influence that seeks to overthrow the establishment, which is a threat to Wallis's own position and security.

Edward VIII's Pluto Conjunction Wallis's Pluto Orb: 1° 51'

You share the same concerns about survival issues that affect your generation, and you may hold similar spiritual or occult values. However, unless this conjunction is strongly aspected by other planets, it will not have a significant impact on your relationship.

Edward VIII's Pluto Square Wallis's Vertex Orb: 0° 31'

This is an important relationship. It is likely to be memorable but there are issues that you must resolve.

Edward VIII's Chiron Square Wallis's Mercury Orb: 0° 11'

There can be some pain associated with one's education or life skills. One, or both of you, may be surprised to discover that the other has more formal education or life experience. Edward VIII can cause Wallis to feel inadequate intellectually. Meanwhile, Wallis may dance circles around Edward VIII in terms of youthful exuberance, making Edward VIII feel old or tired in comparison. This can exacerbate each of your own insecurities in these areas. The best way to deal with these issues, is to take turns being the student and the teacher. You can both learn from each other, and your relationship will grow stronger for it.

Edward VIII's Chiron Sextile Wallis's Saturn Orb: 3° 18'

This is one of the more rewarding combinations, but it can be painful at times. This relationship focuses on what's best for both of you, and on your legacy: what wisdom you would like to pass on to others. Since our greatest wisdom comes from our greatest pain, you will suffer together through some hardships. But Wallis knows how to turn your setbacks into successes, and Edward VIII knows how to translate your accomplishments into meaning.

This aspect requires a level of maturity from both of you. If you're less mature, Wallis would stop Edward VIII from discovering his life's meaning, rendering his life purposeless. Life would lack the magic and mystery that Edward VIII craves. And Edward VIII would make Wallis think that she isn't as competent as she once thought, and Wallis would become hopeless.

On the other hand, if you're mature and in tune with life's possibilities, you'll learn and grow together through, what promises to be, a significant and long-lasting relationship. Wallis provides the structure a life in which Edward VIII can flourish, and Edward VIII provides the empathy and optimism which allows Wallis to hope and feel secure.

Edward VIII's Chiron Sextile Wallis's Uranus

Orb: 4° 46'

When you're together, you feel like throwing caution to the wind and exploring all that life has to offer. You're inspired by each other and you discover the magic of true friendship. However, Wallis may occasionally feel that Edward VIII is too restrictive, and Wallis may crave more freedom outside of your relationship. This would cause much pain for Edward VIII. Edward VIII would resent Wallis's erratic behavior. Even if life pulls you in opposite directions, this contact promises lifelong friendship and unexpected surprises.

Edward VIII's Chiron Square Wallis's Neptune

Orb: 1° 56'

This aspect has very little influence on your specific relationship, as many people born near your time would have the same aspect. This signifies miscommunications which would cause deep pain in the relationship. There could be creative fling, giving false impressions, or self-delusion. You both want to be loved unconditionally, but may not be as willing to give it to the other.

Edward VIII's Chiron Square Wallis's Pluto

Orb: 37'

This aspect has very little influence on your specific relationship, since many people born near the same time would have the same aspect. This signifies a deep attraction to each other, but the relationship provokes issues of trust. It can move Wallis to be controlling, withholding, and Edward VIII can feel trapped.

Edward VIII's Chiron Quincunx Wallis's Ascendant

Orb: 1° 57'

The initial attraction between you is passionate. However, this aspect puts an emphasis on growth and healing from pain. Over time, Wallis may grow in ways that are painful to Edward VIII. This would lead Edward VIII to feel vulnerable or powerless. Wallis may feel that Edward VIII is holding her back, leading Wallis to feel resentment towards Edward VIII. Edward VIII feels that Wallis pushes his most sensitive, painful buttons. This aspect carries the potential of a long-lasting union, but you'll need plenty of empathy and wisdom to see you through.

Edward VIII's Vertex Square Wallis's Midheaven

Orb: 0° 24'

This is an important relationship. It is likely to be honorable but there are issues that you must resolve.

Edward VIII's Ascendant Quincunx Wallis's Sun

Orb: 1° 58'

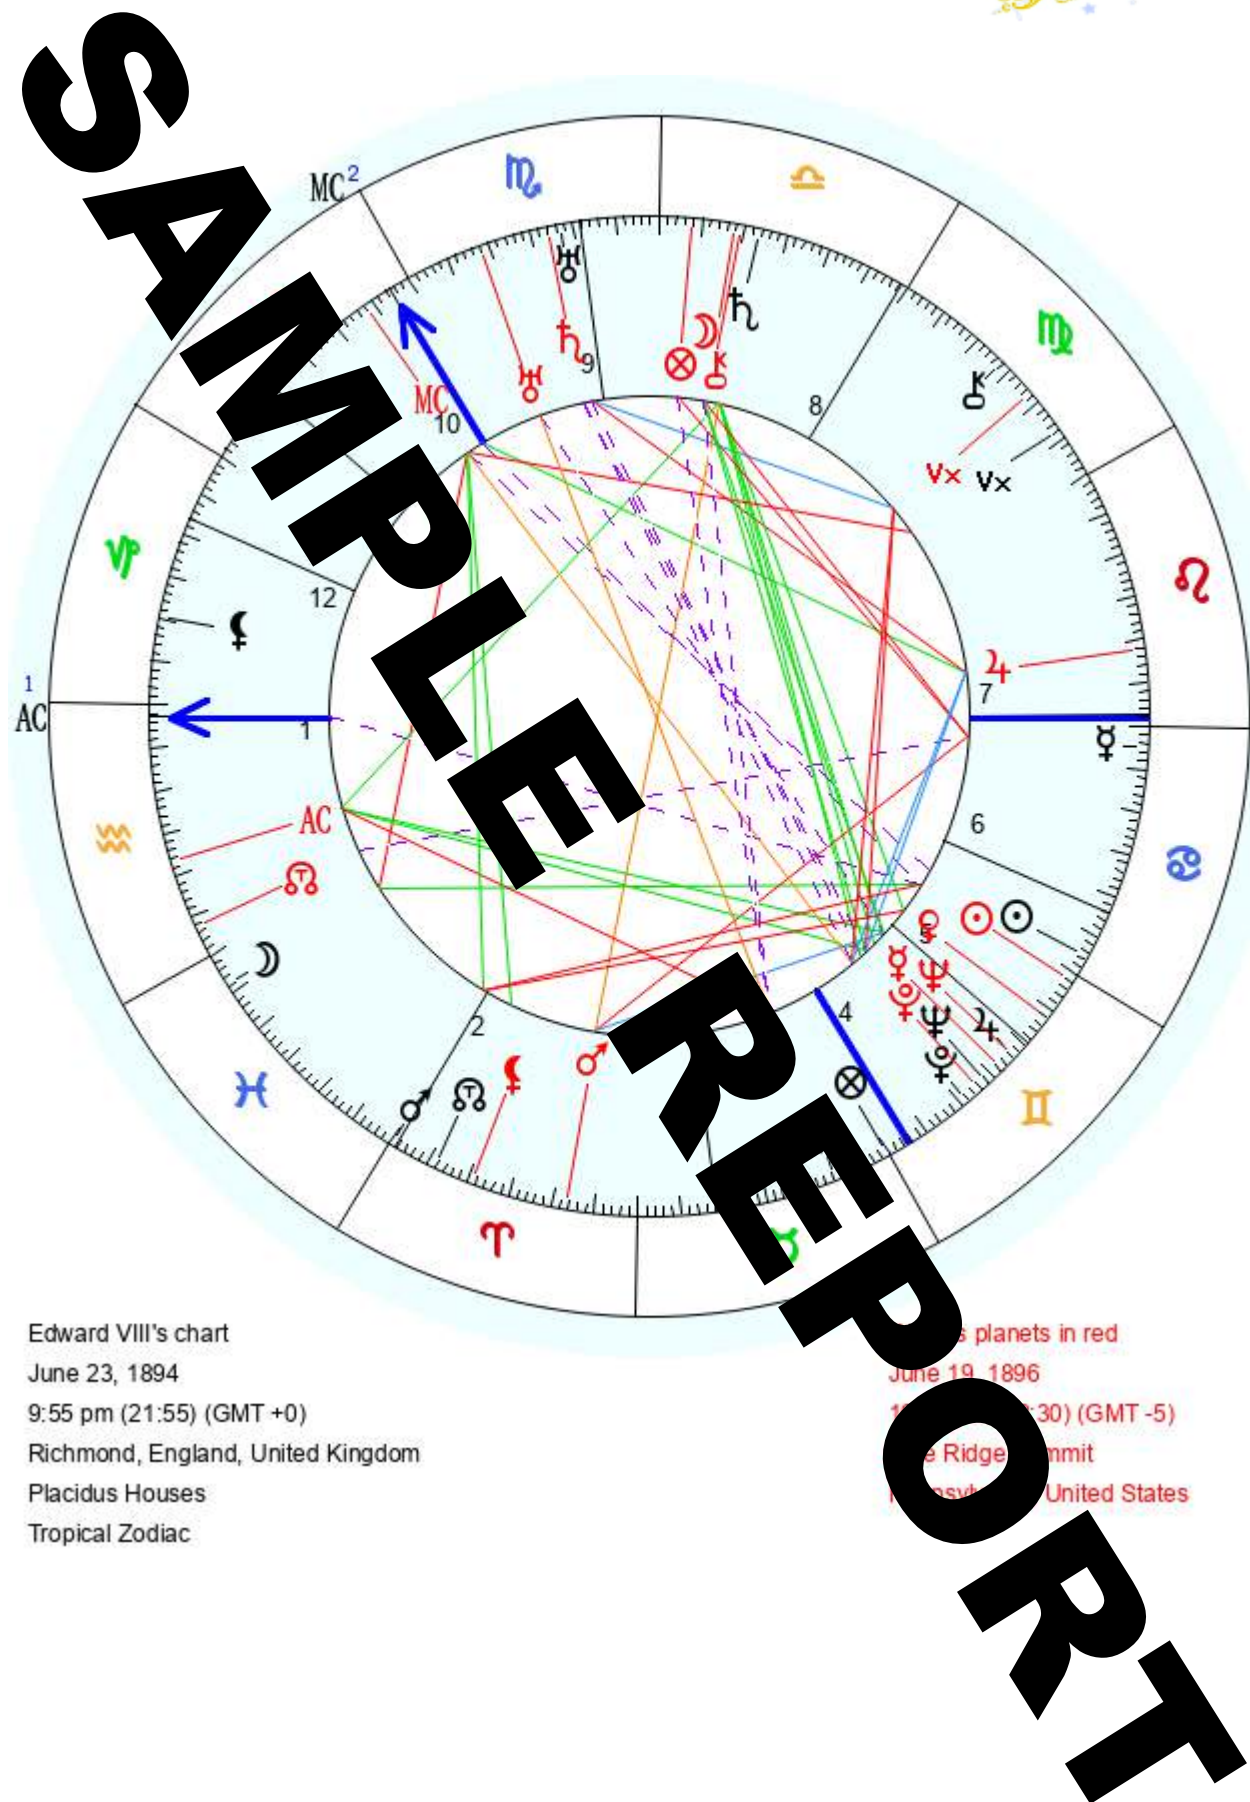

There's a chance you'll have a lot of clashes of wills. Wallis feels that her independence or authority is threatened by Edward VIII's way of thinking, while Edward VIII may have the impression that Wallis is unyielding and unreasonable. However, if the overall comparison is positive, and with the help of a tolerant and mature attitude, you can achieve an exceptionally dynamic cooperation.

NO COMMENTS

AstroLibrary is not responsible for how you use the information in this report.

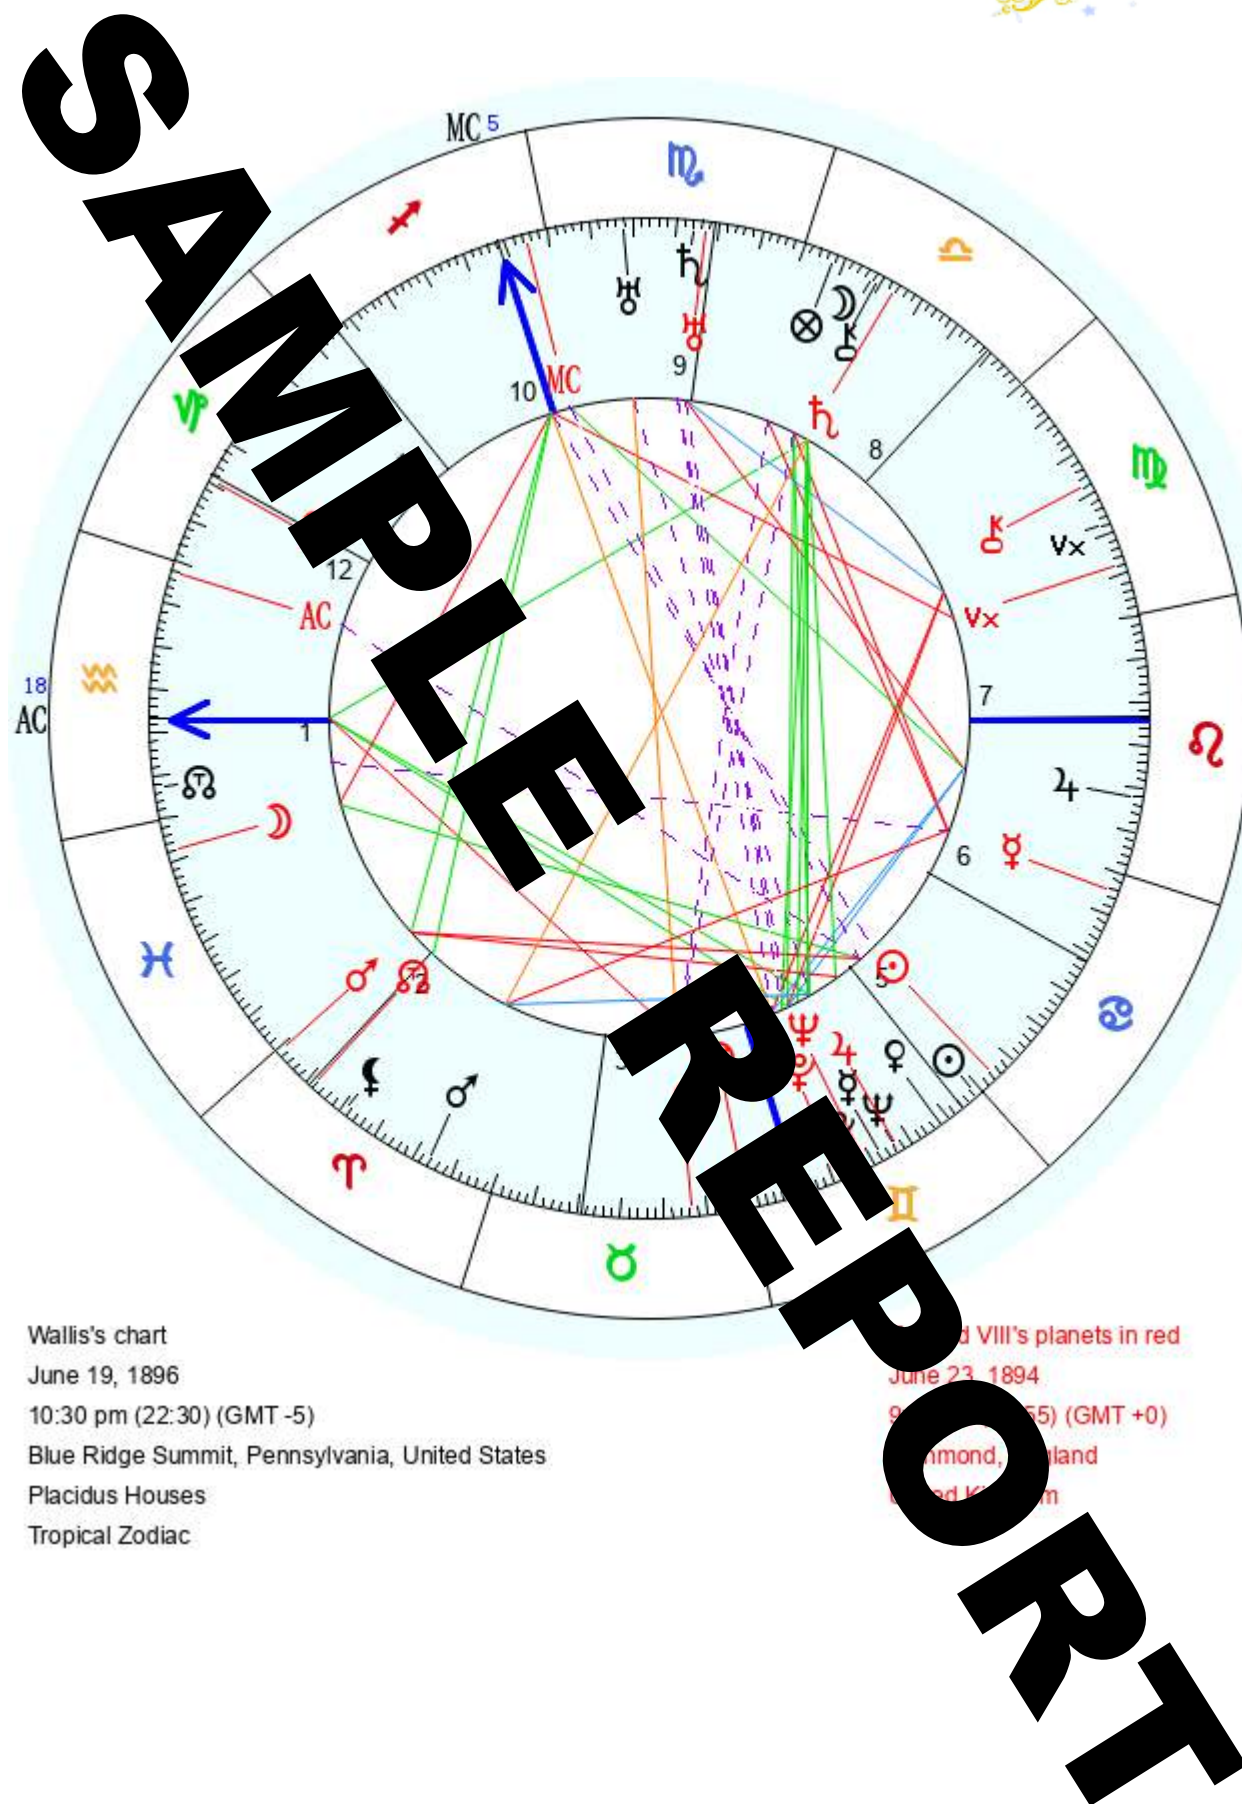

This report has been formulated with the assumption that the birth date, time, and place are accurate for both persons. Even a difference of one hour in birth time can invalidate much of the interpretation given in this report, most notably 'PART 1', 'PART 2', and aspects involving the MOON, VERTEX, and ASCENDANT in 'PART 3'.

By no means is this astrological analysis complete. You and your partner are far more complex than what a few pages can depict. Now you know more about where each of you is coming from. Hopefully, this report will set you on the path to truly discovering what your relationship can become.

Edward VIII's chart
 June 23, 1894
 9:55 pm (21:55) (GMT +0)
 Richmond, England, United Kingdom
 Placidus Houses
 Tropical Zodiac

planets in red
 June 19, 1896
 1:30 (GMT -5)
 Ridge Summit
 Pennsylvania, United States

Wallis's chart
 June 19, 1896
 10:30 pm (22:30) (GMT -5)
 Blue Ridge Summit, Pennsylvania, United States
 Placidus Houses
 Tropical Zodiac

Red VIII's planets in red
 June 23, 1894
 9:00 am (GMT +0)
 Richmond, England
 United Kingdom

Aspect Grid

and

Planetary Placements

	Edward VIII	Wallis
Sun	♌ Can 2° 20' 35" R	♌ Gem 29° 14' 46" R
Moon	♋ Pis 3° 52' 31"	♋ Lib 21° 15' 42"
Mercury	♌ Can 27° 36' 36" R	♌ Gem 16° 04' 40" R
Venus	♉ Tau 23° 17' 00"	♌ Gem 23° 54' 13" R
Mars	♈ Ari 0° 23' 00"	♈ Ari 21° 42' 39"
Jupiter	♊ Gem 18° 20' 49"	♋ Leo 8° 53' 57" R
Saturn	♏ Lib 18° 25' 12"	♏ Sco 12° 57' 19"
Uranus	♏ Sco 11° 32' 29"	♏ Sco 21° 02' 42"
Neptune	♊ Gem 13° 59' 30"	♌ Gem 18° 12' 08"
Pluto	♊ Gem 10° 47' 39"	♌ Gem 12° 38' 22"
Chiron	♏ Vir 16° 15' 49"	♏ Lib 20° 35' 58"
Lilith	♏ Cap 19° 43' 34"	♈ Ari 10° 34' 37"
Asc Node	♈ Ari 5° 47' 52"	♏ Aqu 26° 17' 31"
Pc Fortune	♉ Tau 29° 41' 51"	♏ Lib 26° 12' 27"
Asc Ex	♏ Vir 6° 10' 26"	♏ Vir 11° 19' 21"
Asc	♏ Aqu 1° 13' 47"	♏ Aqu 18° 13' 23"
MC	♏ Sag 2° 33' 39"	♏ Sag 5° 46' 29"

Edward VIII
June 23, 1894
9:55 pm (21:55) (GMT +0)
Richmond, England, United Kingdom
Tropical Zodiac

Wallis
June 19, 1896
10:30 pm (22:30) (GMT -5)
Blue Ridge Summit
Pennsylvania, United States